Clackamas County Tourism announces $250,000 in grant funding

Oregon City, Ore. – The Clackamas County Tourism Development Council (TDC), has announced the recipients of $250,000 in Tourism Development Grants for FY 2016-17. The TDC oversees the county's 6% lodging tax program branded as Oregon's Mt. Hood Territory.

Grant funding was increased by $50,000 to $250,000 this year as a result of growing tourism revenues from overnight stays at county hotels, motels and other lodging facilities. "Transient Room Tax revenues have increased to record levels over the past few years and as a board, we determined that reinvesting even more of those funds into further developing our tourism assets in the county was a prudent investment strategy," said John Erickson, Chair of the TDC.

The Tourism Development Grant Program in its current form was launched by the TDC in 2010 to assist in the creation and growth of initiatives that will improve tourism offerings in Clackamas County. Grant funds come from the Transient Room Tax revenue, designated by county law to be used for tourism development and marketing purposes.

This year's awards support projects in five Clackamas County cities as well as projects with countywide impact. A total of eight projects were awarded full or partial funding. The projects include:

- "Genealogy Research Lab" by Clackamas County Historical Society: $20,000
The genealogy research lab at the Museum of the Oregon Territory will provide visitors researching their family history access to the unique records available on through the Clackamas County Historical Society. - "Sandy Ridge Trailhead Access Improvements" by the Bureau of Land Management: $80,000
Grant funds will be used for trailhead improvements at the Sandy Ridge Trail System that increase capacity for parking and events. These improvements are part of a large multifaceted BLM project that adds amenities to this well-known mountain biking destination.
